Rewald investors hold first meeting tonight

The first general meeting of the Bishop, Baldwin, Rewald, Dillingham and Wong Investors' Association is slated for tonight in Waikiki. The group was formed last month, and its organizers hope more investors in the defunct firm will join at the meeting.

Investors will have to show identification and proof of claim to attend. The group's organizers have formed a temporary nine-member board to represent its membership, which so far includes between 75 and 80 investors. The group says it is committed to "maximizing the return of every dollar possible from the bankruptcy to investors."

The general meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Paisley Room of the Hilton Lagoon Apartments in Waikiki.
